David Bennett, former Redington Board Member and Head of Investment Consulting, joins XTP

[19.01.23, London] David Bennett, former Board Member and Head of Investment Consulting at Redington, joins XTP Ltd. as a NED and Senior Advisor. David will support XTP's growth in the institutional asset owner space in the UK.

David spent nearly 13 years at Redington where he played an integral role in growing the business from a start-up to one of the UK's leading investment consulting firms. David was a Board Member, Head of Research, Chair of Redington's Investment Strategy Committee, and a Senior Consultant where he advised some of the UK's biggest and most sophisticated pension funds.

Before Redington, he spent 24 years at Goldman Sachs, including seven years working in the Pensions and Insurance Strategy Group advising UK pension funds and insurance companies, and served as a trustee and investment committee member of the Goldman Sachs defined benefit pension fund.

XTP Director Stewart Bevan said: "David brings a wealth of financial services expertise and is a highly regarded industry professional. As UK pension schemes strive to enhance their investment governance and increase returns, David's knowledge and experience will help steer us toward delivering maximum value for our clients. We are delighted to have David on board."

David Bennett: "I was extremely impressed with the rigor and depth of XTP's process. Their data-driven approach delivers unique insights into the investment set-up, resulting in measurable efficiency gains for institutional asset owners. XTP have an excellent and highly experienced team and I am excited to be supporting them in executing their ambitious growth plans in the UK."

XTP is a specialist consultant focusing on investment transparency, cost, and risk. XTP increases net returns and enhances investment governance in public and private market portfolios of large institutional asset owners in Europe and the US.
